OTF does not sell, rent, loan or otherwise share any information about anyone. Information that you provide to us by filling out online forms is located on a secure server. We have put into effect appropriate procedures to safeguard and secure the information we collect online. Once you provide us with personal or professional information, that data remains confidential.

However, like all organizations with a web presence, OTF may receive standard tracking data from site users: information from your browser, including your IP address and the page you visited, is recorded in our web site server logs. This data is analyzed internally to determine how to best provide information to visitors to our web site. No personal information is collected during the tracking process.

Some personal information may be transferred to third parties, without notice to you, in order to comply with applicable law, law enforcement agencies, to protect our rights, or to protect the rights of other users of this website.

You may decide to send us personally-identifying information, for example, in an electronic mail message containing a question or comment that provides us this information. We use personally-identifying information from email primarily to respond to your request. We may also use your email to contact you in the future about our programs that may be of interest to you. We will not share your name or email address with any outside parties.

By using our website, you signify your agreement to the terms of our Privacy Policy, which OTF may amend at any time. OTF will post a notice on this website if any material change to the way in which information is collected, used, and/or shared is made. If you do not respond within 30 days or continue to use the website 30 days after such notice is posted, OTF assumes you have given your permission for your information to be used under the terms of the new Privacy Policy.
